

ABSTRACT

An organic electroluminescent device comprising: a pair of electrode; and at least one organic layer between the pair of electrode, the at least one organic layer including a luminescent layer, wherein the luminescent layer contains at least one phosphorescent material and at least one compound represented by the formula (I) defined herein.